1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Introduction from Rally Ireland

Welcome - Fáilte - Bienvenue - Bienvenidos - Willkommen - Benvenuto - Boas - Vindas

Welcome to Ireland's second running of a round of the World Rally Championship, an event we hope will continue to be on the calendar for many years to come.

The beautiful location of the north-western counties of Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland, familiar to those of you who attended our candidate event in 2006 and our inaugural WRC event in 2007, will be home to Rally Ireland WRC. Rally Headquarters and the Service Park for the event will be located in Sligo city. The Headquarters will be in the Clarion Hotel with the Service Park adjacent to it in the campus of the Institute of Technology. The Media Centre will be located inside the Service Park.

Rally Ireland is round one of the 2009 FIA World Rally Championships and will take place from Friday 30th January 2009 to Sunday 1st February 2009. The event will open with a Ceremonial Start in Enniskillen, on Thursday evening. The event route includes eight counties, both north and south of Ireland, and the rally will conclude on Sunday with a Super Special Stage in Donegal Town.

We have harnessed the best challenges of Irish tarmac for the event; excellent challenging stages in the Sligo mountains and Fermanagh lakelands that will delight, inspire and challenge competitors and spectators alike.

The enthusiasm of Irish motorsport fans is renowned throughout the world, and we expect large numbers of spectators from here and overseas to attend. We have put in place a very comprehensive spectator and safety management plan to make the event safe and enjoyable for all our guests. We have also introduced a major environmental initiative to reduce the carbon footprint of the event and make significant moves towards environmental awareness and good practice in motorsport.

The support of the governments in both the north and south of Ireland for this event has been strong and consistent, as witnessed by our sponsorship from government agencies Fáilte Ireland and Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) in Northern Ireland. All of the local agencies in tourism and hospitality, emergency services and motorsport are working to deliver a world-class event and ensure you of the hospitality we are famous for. Motorsport Ireland and the Association of Northern Ireland Car Clubs are driving forward professional training for over 4000 volunteers who will work as Marshals and in other capacities on the event.

Our core management team is drawn from the most talented and experienced professionals in their fields from all around the world. Over four years of planning has gone into making Rally Ireland what we believe will be the best round of the World Rally Championship in 2009.

We look forward to welcoming you in January.

Rally Ireland Team

1.2 Event Overview

Rally Ireland 2009 will once again be a unique sporting challenge to the World Rally Championship, with its own character of roads not found elsewhere in the WRC.

The route is a mixture of flowing mountain roads and tight twisty farming lanes, challenging to both cars and crews.

The route for Rally Ireland has been chosen to showcase the country and its scenery, spectator access and above all a high emphasis on safety being a key ingredient.

The event is once again based in the city of Sligo on the West coast with the event utilising territory all over the North West of Ireland, straddling the border with Northern Ireland.

The Service Park is based at the Institute of Technology in Sligo, adjacent to the Rally HQ, with the Media Centre also based in the Service Park. A shakedown stage is located close by.

The event will begin on Thursday evening 29th January 2009, with a Ceremonial Start in Enniskillen, Co Fermanagh. The rally proper will start on Friday morning from Sligo with three stages run twice in the Leitrim/Cavan area before moving after a second service to take in two stages in Co Tyrone after nightfall. Parc Fermé is adjacent to the Service Park, with the day's stages totalling nearly 165km.

On Saturday the action moves to Northern Ireland with three stages in Counties Tyrone and Fermanagh being run twice, interspersed with Service in Sligo, and totalling 132km before returning to Sligo for the overnight halt.

Sunday's action takes in five stages totalling almost 70km in counties Sligo, Leitrim, Roscommon and Donegal culminating with a thrilling stage around the streets of Donegal Town, which will be televised live as a fitting finish to what will be an excellent opening event of the season.

The cars will have a final Service before the Final Control and Podium Ceremony in Sligo.

16. LIST OF USEFUL FACTS AND SERVICES

About Ireland

Here on the edge of Europe, the island of Ireland is a dazzling green emerald sparkling in the Atlantic. The haunting elemental beauty of Ireland's spectacular coastline is evident throughout the island, from the Causeway Coastal Route to the Ring of Kerry. For such a small island, the landscape of Ireland is immensely diverse. A journey of an hour in Ireland will take you through thousands of years of history, glittering green countryside, mystical castles, charming villages and vibrant cities.

Ireland enjoys over 1,448km of spectacular coastline, surrounded by the mighty Atlantic on the west and the Irish Sea on the east. As well as towering cliffs, clear fresh waters, pristine sandy beaches, and an abundance of opportunities for the watersports enthusiast, the coastline enjoys lively fishing villages with some of the best seafood in the world.

The political landscape of the island has changed over the centuries. In the 1920's, a treaty was agreed which divided the island into the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland, with Northern Ireland falling under the sovereignty of the United Kingdom. In 1998, an Agreement between the governments of Ireland and the political parties on the island known as the "Good Friday Agreement" was signed.

Despite many problems implementing this agreement, on 8th May 2007 Northern Ireland established its own Legislative Assembly with locally elected representatives, rather than being governed by the United Kingdom Parliament. It is widely hoped that this agreement and new political co-operation between the governments north and south will put an end for good to the island's troubled past. Rally Ireland itself is a positive result of that new spirit of co-operation, being equally split between northern and southern Ireland and enjoying strong support from both political administrations.

The primary language on the island is English, spoken by all the population. The Irish language, which was in decline for many years, has seen a resurgence of growth over the last ten years with many new schools opening and a dedicated Irish-language television channel coming on air. The Irish language is widely spoken as the first language in "gaeltacht" areas, which are primarily in the west of the island in Donegal, Mayo and Galway. With strong ties to other Celtic countries, the Ulster-Scots language, which was once widely spoken in the north-eastern counties, is also enjoying a renaissance.

Modern Ireland now enjoys more immigration than emigration. Thanks in large part to the boom of the Celtic Tiger economy in the 1990s, the Ireland of the 21st century is a vibrant, culturally rich and ethnically diverse country with an entirely youthful and optimistic outlook – over half the population is under 30, after all!

With all these changes in society over the years, one thing remains constant. The people of the island are renowned for their hospitality and love of the "craic" – the Irish word for sport or fun. Rally Ireland's goal is to be good sport; and good fun!

Signposts

Signposting is generally in English and Irish. However, signposting in Gaeltacht or Irish speaking areas may appear in the Irish language only, so consult your maps carefully. Fáilte Ireland (Irish Tourist Board) produces a map of Ireland, which depicts place names in both Irish and in English. We would advise that visitors use this map, which is available from any Tourist Information Centre. On the main Irish road signs distances are displayed in kph on green and white signs. However, some of the older black and white signs still remain and distances on these are in miles.

Signposting in Northern Ireland is on black and white signs in English. All distances in Northern Ireland are displayed in miles.

Smoke Free at Work

From March 29 2004 most enclosed places of work in Ireland became smoke free. A similar legislation came into effect in Northern Ireland on 30th April 2007, so throughout the island, bars, restaurants and public buildings are now completely smoke free.

This important health measure is about allowing people to work and socialise in a clean and healthy smoke-free environment. Most work places will be covered by this but there are some exceptions. Places that are similar to a private dwelling such as bedrooms in hotels, guesthouses, hostels and B&B's. Outdoor locations such as beer gardens and smoking shelters provided they comply with the legislation. For further information please go to www.smokefreeatwork.ie.
